

SAVE THE NEPALESE MONKEYS FROM VIVISECTION

Every visitor to Nepal is immediately charmed by the sight of wild monkeys.

They are an integral part of Nepal's wildlife and sacred to the Nepalese people.

But not every monkey in Nepal is treated with respect.

They are caught in the wild and imprisoned in a breeding farm in Lele. This farm belongs to the biggest primate research center in America, the Southwest Foundation for Bio-Medical Research.

Every year the American vivisectors use over 60.000 monkeys in cruel experiments and they are constantly in need of 'fresh' monkeys to exploit.

Their focus is now on Nepal's wildlife...

Rhesus macaque monkeys are the subject of choice for animal experiments because of their willingness to breed in captivity. However research on monkeys is being questioned in Europe because tests performed on monkeys are unreliable and often substances which tested as safe in the monkey model are found to be harmful to humans.

Rhesus monkeys are sacred to the Nepalese people, who are horrified that their sacred animals are being used and tortured in that way.

GATEWAY TO HELL

The Gateway to Hell campaign is an international volunteer campaign that aims to save the Nepalese monkeys from vivisection!

The Gateway to Hell campaign demands from the Nepalese government to legislate the rights of these monkeys into strict laws:

1. Banning the export of monkeys for biomedical research by law.
2. Banning the breeding and capturing monkeys for biomedical research by law.
3. Banning experiments on monkeys for biomedical research by law.

The Gateway to Hell campaign demands the immediate release of all the 250 captured monkeys still caged in the breeding farm in Lele. We want the monkeys to be rehabilitated and released back into the wild.

We will never accept that Nepalese monkeys are being used in vicious and cruel experiments of no scientific value. Monkeys are beautiful creatures and these sick experiments on them must be stopped immediately.

SUPPORT THE CAMPAIGN!

You can help to win this campaign and save the Nepalese monkeys from vivisection. As a tourist, contact the Consulate or Embassy of Nepal in your country. A list is available on our website.

Organise or attend a demonstration.

Distribute this folder and start informing people about Nepal's shame. Sign up for our email alerts on our website for the latest news on the campaign and for actions you can take to help.

For more information don't hesitate to contact us!

info@gatewaytohell.net

www.gatewaytohell.net

SAVE THE NEPALESE MONKEYS FROM VIVISECTION

Every visitor to Nepal is immediately charmed by the sight of wild monkeys.

They are an integral part of Nepal's wildlife and sacred to the Nepalese people.

But not every monkey in Nepal is treated with respect.

They are caught in the wild and imprisoned in a breeding farm in Lele. This farm belongs to the biggest primate research center in America, the Southwest Foundation for Bio-Medical Research.

Every year the American vivisectors use over 60.000 monkeys in cruel experiments and they are constantly in need of 'fresh' monkeys to exploit.

Their focus is now on Nepal's wildlife...

Rhesus macaque monkeys are the subject of choice for animal experiments because of their willingness to breed in captivity. However research on monkeys is being questioned in Europe because tests performed on monkeys are unreliable and often substances which tested as safe in the monkey model are found to be harmful to humans.

Rhesus monkeys are sacred to the Nepalese people, who are horrified that their sacred animals are being used and tortured in that way.

GATEWAY TO HELL

The Gateway to Hell campaign is an international volunteer campaign that aims to save the Nepalese monkeys from vivisection!

The Gateway to Hell campaign demands from the Nepalese government to legislate the rights of these monkeys into strict laws:

1. Banning the export of monkeys for biomedical research by law.
2. Banning the breeding and capturing monkeys for biomedical research by law.
3. Banning experiments on monkeys for biomedical research by law.

The Gateway to Hell campaign demands the immediate release of all the 250 captured monkeys still caged in the breeding farm in Lele. We want the monkeys to be rehabilitated and released back into the wild.

We will never accept that Nepalese monkeys are being used in vicious and cruel experiments of no scientific value. Monkeys are beautiful creatures and these sick experiments on them must be stopped immediately.

SUPPORT THE CAMPAIGN!

You can help to win this campaign and save the Nepalese monkeys from vivisection. As a tourist, contact the Consulate or Embassy of Nepal in your country. A list is available on our website.

Organise or attend a demonstration.

Distribute this folder and start informing people about Nepal's shame. Sign up for our email alerts on our website for the latest news on the campaign and for actions you can take to help.

For more information don't hesitate to contact us!

info@gatewaytohell.net

www.gatewaytohell.net